BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Opponents of the planned testing of Advanced Solid Rocket Motors (ASRM) at John Stehnis Space Center unified nationally Tuesday as cries of warning were spread via the broadcast and print media.

Dr. Robert Esher, vice-president of Citizens for a Healthy Environment, reported news conferences were being held simultaneously in Los Angeles and San Diego, Calif.; Nevada, Utah, Florida, Washington and Hancock County through an alliance of environmental organizations.

Esher was interviewed by WLOX, Channel 13 of Biloxi-Gulfport, and WDSU, Channel 6 of New Orleans.

He stated, "We are now trying to inform Congress of our concerns over the planned ASRM testing. We want Congress to know this is not just a South Mississippi problem. Nationally there are many groups concerned over the effects on the environment, should the testing take place."

Council backs seawall request

BY TRACI BONNEY

The City of Bay St. Louis is backing the county's request for emergency seawall repair funds.

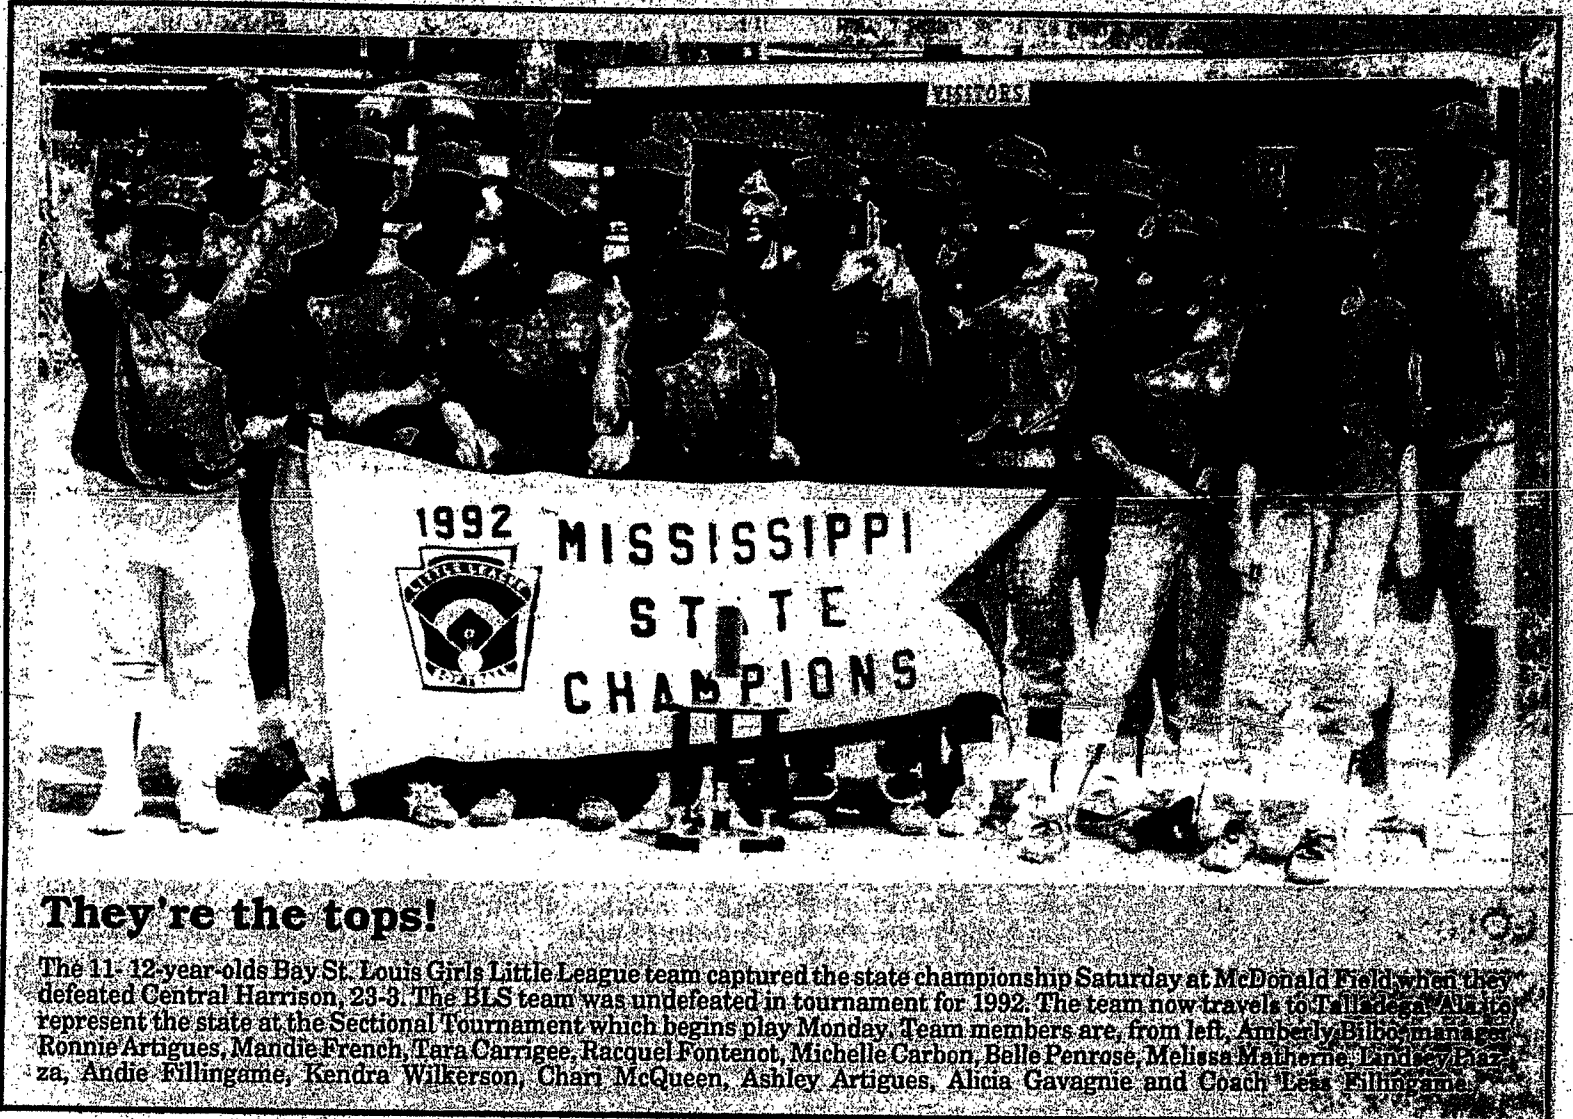

The City Council unanimously passed a resolution Tuesday supporting a request made by the board of supervisors to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for monies, up to $500,000 per segment, for seawall repairs.

The supervisors had passed a resolution of their own, making that request, last week during a meeting with the Sand Beach Advisory Committee, Rep. Gene Taylor and officials from the Corps of Engineers and Soil Conservation Service.

During discussion of the county's long-studied and planned beach renourishment project, Corps spokesman Roger Burke said up to $500,000 may be available for

Fire marshal retires to go fishin'

BY TRACI BONNEY

Jay Marsh is changing hats. He's trading in about seven, most of them fire- and safety-related, for one: a fishing hat.

The start of an interview

Wednesday about his imminent retirement, was momentarily interrupted as a well-wisher stopped by Marsh's office to wish him good luck.

Marsh replied, "Give me a fish hook. I'm asking all my friends to give me a fish hook or a lure."

During the next two months, before his retirement becomes effective September 15, Marsh is getting all his work things in order. "I have so much disorganization here right now, I can't keep up with it all," he commented.

Small wonder. Marsh is giving up paying jobs as county fire coordinator, fire marshal, fire and arson investigator, and volunteer positions as county safety officer, assistant Civil Defense director, chairman of the local emergency planning committee, and "one more, but I can't think of it right now," he said.

"I love the job. I worked in the fire service for 21 years in this county as a volunteer, and six years as a paid employee.

"It's been a real gratifying experience, and believe me, I've had some experiences. There have been some happy moments, and some real sad moments.

"Being a firefighter has been called the most dangerous profession. I have to agree with that.

"I remember back years ago, when we had only one volunteer fire department in the county. One time, at Bayside Park, we had this trailer on fire, not eight feet away from the house. I remember taking a hose and, to save the house, I got between the trailer and the house with the hose, while the other firefighters kept hoses trained on me to keep me cool.

"We saved the house, I'll tell you that.

"Another time, before we had respiratory equipment, we got

Brown approved for Port and Harbor seat

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Louis Brown will replace Nancy Gex as the Waveland appointee on the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, effective immediately.

A letter of approval was sent from Governor Kirk Fordice's office last week to both Waveland Mayor Stella Frilot and commission executive director Harold "Buz" Olsen.

Frilot stated, "Nancy Gex did an absolutely fantastic job for the City of Waveland during her years of service. I believe Mr. Brown, with his past experience, will also do an admirable job representing Waveland."

Brown worked for the Houston Port Authority as operating department manager for 17 years.

Brown said he received a phone call from Jackson informing him of the governor's approval of the appointment last week.

"This afternoon (Tuesday) I am accompanying Commissioner (Dave) McDonald on a tour of the facilities," he added. "With all the exciting changes going on within the county, I am really

Domestic quarrel results in shooting

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A quarrel between a Waveland woman and her boyfriend resulted in the man being shot in the leg around 1 p.m. Wednesday, Waveland Police Chief James Varnell reported.

Varnell stated, "David Ralph Dominici, 33, of Meraux, La., stated he was wanting to leave the apartment of Tammy Hoffman, 26, of 119 Beth Court in Waveland, when they got into a

"Dominici said the two of them began to threaten each other back and forth. He picked up a baseball bat to ensure his leaving, and when he did this Hoffman took it as a threat.

"She took out her 9 millimeter and shot him, striking him inside the left knee."

Varnell added that the area

Young local restaurateur makes hard work pay off

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

They call her Flash. She is 20 years old, soft-spoken, and for the past year the owner of "J's Restaurant" in Waveland.

Cyndi "Flash" Walters acknowledges the road she chose to take has been a hard one.

A Bay St. Louis native, Walters quit school in the ninth grade. "I didn't care for it," she stated.

"My parents tried to force me to go back, but I wanted to work."

So to work she did go. For over a year she worked as a dishwasher for Jay Kleinman, the former owner of "J's Restaurant." It was here she received her nick-name.

"I was so slow when I began working here, one of the cooks began calling me Flash, and it stuck."

Walters was also working at Ruth's Bakery in Bay St. Louis during that first year.

"I worked both jobs for a long time. It is a hard way to make a living," she commented. "I don't recommend anyone do as I did. Stay in school. You may think you want to get out and get a job, but it's tough. School is a lot easier than the real world."

Walters said she just completed the testing for her GED (general equivalency diploma) three weeks ago. "I'm waiting on the results now."

After that first year, Walters moved on up to prep cook, cook and eventually manager.

"When Jay was ready to sell the place, I said, 'Yea, I know how to make the orders and what to do.' I worked over a year as manager."

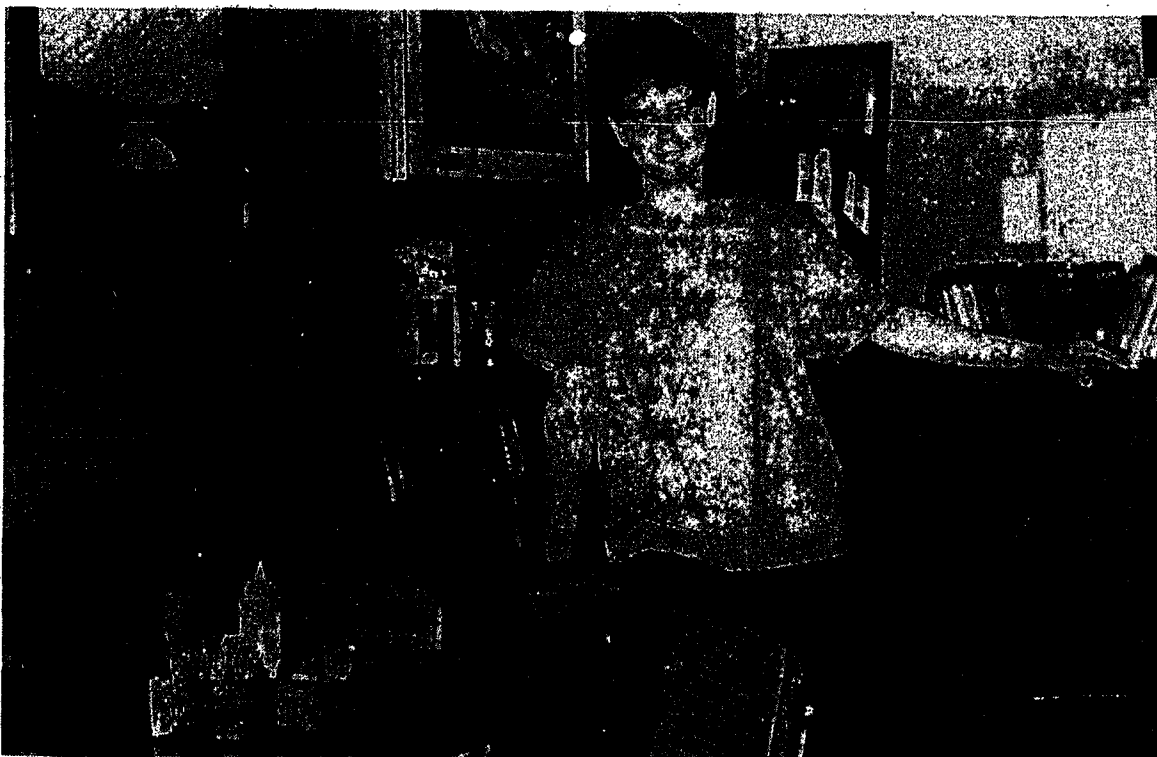

She purchased the restaurant through an owner financing agreement with Kleinman. "I had enough savings to purchase the inventory from him and we worked out the rest."

Walters, being 19 when she purchased J's Restaurant, could not obtain a license to sell beer. So she placed everything in her mother's name until January when she reaches legal age.

"People tease me all the time about not being able to buy a beer in my own restaurant."

doing private paid work as a fire investigator. "One thing I've gotten from all these years is that I'm state-certified as an investigator and I'm qualified to be an expert witness in court cases."

Marsh has seen the county's firefighting system grow from one truck and five firefighters in the late 1960s to nine volunteer fire departments and more than 250 firefighters today.

He has also seen many other advances in the system. Chief advances have been in water supply: the soon-to-be-installed dry hydrants, which allow the firefighters to pump water from a local body of water with which the hydrant is connected, and the increase in quantity and quality of equipment the departments have.

However, water supply remains a problem in rural communities. Marsh said that as the volunteer districts improve their water moving capabilities, they will see lower fire rating classifications, which means lower insurance rates.

Most of the county's volunteer districts currently have a certified 10 rating, which is the highest rating on the scale but is better than being unrated. Marsh said the Kiln district has a 9 rating, and the East Hancock district has the distinction of being the state's only district with a split rating, a 9 in Jourdan River Isles and part of Garden Isles, and a 10 in the rest of the district.

"A very dedicated man here spent a year running to Jackson and back to get the split rating. After East Hancock got it, the to this house that was burning, with smoke everywhere real thick, and we were told there was a woman in there with a baby. So I remember running through that house, taking a breath whenever there was a clear spot, and when the smoke got too thick, I'd run stick my head outside a window and get some air, then duck back in and search some more.

"It turned out that no one was in the house at all."

Marsh said his saddest experience was in 1985, when a mobile home in Waveland burned with several children inside.

"One thing I'm mighty proud of is knowing these volunteers and working with them. The average person in the public cannot understand what goes on in a volunteer firefighter's mind, what kind of dedication they have to saving lives. I have nothing but praise for them."

Marsh won't be in complete retirement. He said he intends to remain a volunteer firefighter as long as he is physically able, and he is considering state was flooded with requests from other districts for split ratings. They got so many requests, they finally got an attorney general's opinion that you can't do that anymore. That opinion is still used in fire seminars."

Hancock County's fire districts also pioneered the increased fire protection millage levy. Marsh said the levy was very limited at one time, but the county got a local private bill passed allowing it to levy up to four mills in each district for fire protection. Since then, he added, the levy cap has been lifted throughout the state.

One comment of his, although not directed to whoever succeeds him, sounded like good advice on how to cope with this very demanding position: "You've got to handle this job with finesse. You can't be mean and nasty to people; otherwise, every supervisors' meeting there'd be someone up there griping about the fire departments."

Meanwhile, come September 16, don't look for Jay Marsh at the Civil Defense office. He'll probably be out on his first fishing trip in a year, angling for speckled trout with his new hooks and lures.

looking forward to working with the commission."

Olsen explained, "During the next regular meeting of the commission, August 10, Brown will be sworn in by Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise."

"I understand Mr. Brown has a background in ports and we certainly welcome his experience in this area. I am looking forward to meeting him, and working with him."

"There is not enough I can say about Nancy (Gex). She has been very supportive of me and this commission. She was always ready to take on new challenges and was very successful with the railroad committee."

"I would say I will miss her, but she will still be visible, as she has said she would continue in other areas of economic development, assisting the commission as best she can."

Gex was the first female commissioner to serve on the Hancock County board. She has served for eight years.

Lisa Bulow, assistant to the governor for boards and commissions, reported the governor has rejected the Bay St. Louis reappointment of Commissioner Russell Elliot.

Mayor Eddie Favre stated, "We have not done anything at this time. I will speak of it to the Council and see what they choose to do."

"It is my understanding that Mr. Elliot will sit on the commission until the time he is replaced. If no one is named to replace him, he will continue to sit."

Calgon shut down during fire investigation

Calgon Carbon Corp.'s Port Bienville plant, which stopped production Saturday morning following the severe injury of a worker in a flash fire, will remain shut down for up to three weeks during an investigation, according to plant manager Anthony Wierzbowski.

Regis P. Thompson, 44, of Picayune was sustained second- and third-degree burns over about 60 percent of his body when a coal dust explosion and flash fire occurred in one of the plant's baker processing areas. Although Thompson walked away from the area and was taken by car to North Shore Regional Medical Center in Slidell, La., he was airlifted to Louisiana's burn center in Baton Rouge.

Wierzbowski said doctors listed him in serious but stable condition earlier this week.

Calgon and insurance officials are investigating the incident, which they suspect was caused by a damper malfunction. Wierzbowski said there have been several minor explosions since the plant's opening in March, but this is the first time an injury has resulted.

each separate seawall repair project.

Burke added that those funds may also be available for beach renourishment, with the understanding that the work is being done as a seawall protection measure and not for purely recreational purposes.

The City Council members, in passing their resolution on the seawall funds request, stated that they understood their support of the county's resolution to the Corps does not obligate any city funds to seawall repair.

Their decision to support the county came after a Monday workshop in which beach renourishment consultant Bill Mitchell explained the project's status to the Council.

ART TOUR

Ruth Thompson, co-chairperson of the Bay St. Louis Development Foundation's art tour "Bay St. Louis—A Place of Art," requested that the city buy $2,000 of advertisement in the September 13 event. Total cost of the event is estimated at $12,000, she said.

Thompson had made the request at the Monday workshop, but had asked if the city could donate the money. Having been told the city could not legally make donations, but could advertise the city's resources and opportunities, she restructured her request and asked the Council to buy advertising.

Her request was unanimously approved.

She also asked for and received the Council's approval for Main Street from Beach Blvd. to Second Street and from Second to Toulme to be closed the day of the tour to car traffic, since the event is a walking tour that focuses on those blocks and the ones immediately around them.

days a week for lunch and dinner.

Walters works four days out of those seven as a cook. She has two other cooks working for her. As a team of three they are able to trade off days.

She claims to be an excellent fry cook, adding her shrimp are the best.

Walters just completed the remodeling of the back seating area of the restaurant. "I plan to remodel the front area next," she stated.

"The restaurant is really doing well. I hope to have it paid off in 11 more months. After that I will pay the lease and save and eventually build a bigger restaurant on the highway."

Today Walter's mother works as a cashier for her, and her two younger sisters help out.

Her boyfriend gave up his job with Winn-Dixie as dairy and frozen food manager to come to work at Jay's and help her with the work load.

"There are days I think this is a lot of stress for a 20 year old, but this is something I always wanted. I always knew I wanted to work in hotel or restaurant management."

"It has taken a lot of hard work, lots of long hours, that's for sure. You have to be dedicated."

The name Flash may have originated as a joke on Walters slow work performance, but in reality it suits this young woman. For like a flash, she has risen upon the beams of her own energy and determination.

Greetings!

Don't you hate it when you need something to wear TODAY... and you go to the mall, and every store has NEXT SEASON'S clothing for you? Face it. It's hot here. And if you want something to wear for the next couple of months... you don't want sweaters and suede.

So YELLOWBIRD is going to be different from everybody else. We think you need things to wear RIGHT NOW. So we've stocked YELLOWBIRD with cotton tops, cotton wrap skirts and lots of shorts that are transitional and yet cool enough for our warm fall weather.

We think it makes sense. We just bought beautiful sleeveless rayon blouses in fall colors. They retail at $25... our price is $14. We also just received a great new shipment of dresses. We dare not mention the brand, but you'll recognize it immediately. We've priced them 30% to 50% off retail.

If you haven't shopped YELLOWBIRD yet... what are you waiting for? You don't have to run to the mall anymore... we have it all for you at YELLOWBIRD.

OPEN TUESDAY THROUGH FRIDAY, 10 to 6; SATURDAY 10 to 5.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Gum chewers may not be aware of the problems they can cause by throwing gum on a sidewalk or parking lot.

On Tuesday, while at the post office, I stepped on a piece of gum which was really mushy because of the heat, and before I knew it, it was all over the side of my shoe.

I tried to scrape it off, rub it off and finally had to wash it off with gasoline.

The thing that really grates me is the fact, there were two receptacles for cigarette butts, etc., only a few feet from where the gum was on the parking lot.

I am hoping gum chewers will dispose of the used product in a proper manner, thank you.

I spoke to several National Guardsmen from the 1355th this week and they were commenting as to how hot it was at Camp Shelby.

The thing which has always amazed me was the location of military installations, especially those involved in the training of troops.

The weather always seems to be of the extreme, very hot or cold.

I always thought it was hot in Hancock County until I took my basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. in May, June and July of 1954.

I never thought any place could be so hot.

Our 1355th Guardsmen were for the last Fourth of July in Saudi Arabia, yet they still talk about how hot it was at Camp Shelby.

It seems that a desert is not the only place that is hot.

Hopefully our men and women of the 1355th will do their training next year some two weeks other than the July 4th weekend.

I am sure they would like to have the holiday with their families at least one out of three years.

Motorists need to be cautious of the resurfacing equipment in Bay St. Louis, as several areas started to be repaired on Monday.

I realize it is an inconvenience when work is being done on a street, but it is necessary to get the work done.

I am sure glad to see the repairs being made, as many of the streets are in need of them.

For the good of schools and children

Much of what we hear in public debate these days focuses on the right of choice in our society. Arguments fly back and forth about this right, and the arguments are as varied as the issues on which they focus.

One of those issues is choice in education, and it has been a strong point of contention within the ranks of educators and parents across Mississippi.

In an effort to provide more information on the subject, the Mississippi Economic Council has released a report entitled "The Issue is Choice." The result of a two-year study on choice in education, the MEC report reaches the conclusion that greater choice in Mississippi's public school system will work to strengthen the schools.

According to the report, two necessary ingredients for improved education include greater parental involvement and the creation of competition within the school system. The report also calls for returning control of public schools to the local level, providing administrators, teachers and parents with a stronger voice in their schools.

Recognizing the fact that there are some forms of choice already in place in Mississippi schools, the MEC report provides the following

Native of India very evident at convention

There were a lot of zany looking folks in various funny hats and costumes milling around on the floor of the Democratic National Convention last week hoping to be panned by the network TV cameras.

But no conventioner drew more curious attention than a tall, slender, brown-skinned turbaned man in white flowing garments, with a long grey beard, who was often seen in or standing near the Mississippi delegation. And his was not any kind of make-believe getup.

Incongruous as it may seem, Mississippi was possibly the only state at the Democratic convention to have in its group a native Indian (from India, that is) dressed in the authentic garb of his religious sect.

He is Balwant Singh of Pascagoula, a teacher in the Moss Point Public School system, who is a practicing member of the Sikh faith, a mild-mannered service-oriented religious belief founded in India five centuries ago.

Among the articles of faith of Sikhism is to leave hair on the face and head uncut.

Singh was not actually a delegate to the national convention, but he was here because he has become enraptured by Democratic politics since he was made a presidential elector for the Democratic ticket from Mississippi's Fifth Congressional district in April.

Like several other Mississippians who came to observe the big show in the Big Apple, Singh was given one of the floor passes allotted to the state to come down on the floor of Madison Square Garden during some of the convention sessions to sit with the state's delegation.

Each day, Singh wore a different color turban. The color choice, each of which has certain meaning, is left up to individual followers of Sikhism. But on Wednesday, the day that Bill Clinton was given the Democratic Party's presidential nomination, Singh wore a yellow turban.

Why? I asked him. "Yellow dog Democrat," he said with roaring laughter.

A native of Punjab, India, Singh had come to the U.S. in 1960 after graduating with a master's degree in political science from the University of Punjab. For several years she taught in the Mound Bayou, Mississippi, schools, and attended Delta State University to receive an educational specialist degree.

He earned a PhD in elementary education and administration from the University of southern Mississippi in 1977 and moved with his family to Pascagoula in 1978. Meanwhile, back in 1975, he had become a naturalized American citizen.

Singh said he made his decision to come to the U.S. after studying the constitutions of all the major nations. "I saw it was the best in the world, so short and comprehensive. The uniqueness of the United States is in the Bill of Rights, and the beauty of this nation again is that it has made adjustments to compensate for human needs," he said.

He is fascinated, the 59-year-old Indian native said, at seeing democratic values at work. "Freedom, however, has a price. You must get involved. Social studies classes in school should be dealing with and becoming aware of our citizenship responsibilities," Singh said.

His faith teaches that God lives in the heart, and that sincerity in serving mankind is true worship of God. But service to mankind also "becomes the foundation of good government," Singh declared. He opposes quota systems, he said, "because the weak become weaker and the stronger become more alienated."

Singh, who often was seen around the state Capitol in his turban during the last session of the Legislature as one of the activists in the Mississippi Association of Educators, is taking his first venture into politics as a candidate Aug. 4 for the Mississippi House of Representatives District 111 seat.

"This is America where you have the freedom to run for public office," he said, proudly. "And people are treating me with great respect," citing the instance of a businessman who invited him into his home to discuss his platform.

But Singh, in untypical political style, has strong praise for his Democratic opponent in the House race, former state Sen. Stephen Hale of Pascagoula. "He is a good man," Singh said of Hale.

And Singh believes that the nomination of Bill Clinton as the Democratic standard-bearer for president is more than a political happening, but an act of Providence. "Bill Clinton has been given a mission to lead this country," Singh said. "He could be right."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader feels Republicans misuse the word 'liberal'

To the Editor:

The Republicans keep calling folks "Liberals" as if it's a dirty name, and they say they're opposed to anything that has to do with being liberal.

Actually, the word liberal, according to Webster's Dictionary, means "generous, abundant, tolerant of the views differing from one's own, broad-minded and belonging to the people."

Does that mean the Republicans are selfish, opposed to growth, bigoted, mean-spirited and self-serving? Maybe the Republicans should pick up a dictionary once in awhile. It might help them learn a few things: like how to spell correctly and the truth.

Candidates never say where the money will come from

Dear Editor,

What a rosy picture presidential candidates present when they say, "If elected I will see that all Americans get the best of health care, more jobs, more housing and more this and that."

They never say where the money will come from to pay for all this.

For once I would like to hear a presidential candidate say, "If elected I will cut my salary in half, see that the salaries of members of Congress are reduced, cut down on FBI protection for past presidents, cut out all freebies to everyone in government and put these savings towards our national debt."

In other words, if those who run our country would stop living so high on the hog, they might find out just how good pigs feet taste.

God bless America and may our flag wave in peace forever.

Respectfully,
Nina (Strickland) Garcia

A woman's choice should be exercised before conception

Dear Editor:

I read a letter from a local resident in our semi-weekly newspaper on Sunday, dealing with women fighting desperately to keep women's freedom and right to choose.

Any American, man or woman, has a right to express their views against wrong. This is called free speech. Prayerfully it will be coupled with values, decency and a sense of responsibility.

Whatever his/her station in life (man/woman on the street, minister, vice-president) if murder of any kind is sanctioned we have regressed into a barbaric society. The penalty by death (even for vicious crimes) has been disallowed in most states.

I speak out for all those girl-babies that will never become women and have any kind of choices; I speak out for all those boy-child innocent victims.

It was suggested that voices be raised against rape, abuse, molestation, incest, beatings and murder committed against women and children. I might add these crimes against men and inequity in the work-place against women and others in the workplace to the list.

We can agree on this, they are all very serious crimes. If we wait to correct until all crimes are wiped out before correcting a great wrong, man would shortly destroy one another totally.

If every crime mentioned, reported or unreported were counted, by reliable sources, how many years would it take before it equals those lives snuffed out by abortion? Those that will never see the light of day or ever be able to exercise their freedom of choice, lost.

Abortion is not about freedom of choice. It is another step in a promiscuous life style that says "I want what I want, when I want it, with whomever I want it," without care for the outcome.

Abortion is the "in" birth control method of today. Most women having abortions have had several. Come now, mistakes no, careless uncaring lack of control, mostly. Medical science offers excellent methods of preventing pregnancy. Availing oneself to one of these methods would demonstrate some sense of responsibility for one's body.

Medical profession members are becoming wealthy by these abortions and I understand some folk are trying to get rich selling these unwanted babies to the cosmetic industry.

Let's be honest, does anyone really believe the motivation behind these clinics are to help women? Come now!

Hitler gassed his victims for a time. The abortion method is even more barbaric every day, every hour, every minute and every second. Let's speak about unspeakable crimes.

A woman's choice should be exercised before or during the sex act. A baby growing inside is not the property of the mother.

It is supposed to be a safe place for the child to grow and be loved near the heart while waiting to be born. While caring for their body they do not own or have the right to destroy another human being. May God have mercy on their souls.

The human animal is probably the only animal that kills its own young. It is my understanding that past legal decisions and the IRS have recognized these children as legal persons.

Single parent births are on the rise. I pray we can again teach our young the moral values we held in the past that would prevent the unwed mother problem.

I applaud the integrity of those women that go full term and allow those babies to choose life. The decision to raise these little ones or place them in the arms of loving caring people should be commended and encouraged.

There are choices. A national news program recently featured childless couples going to Peru trying to adopt children for their childless homes. The young women wiping away tears giving her child the choice of a good life as compared with Americans throwing their "mistakes" into garbage cans (or worse).

I admire those that step forth to defend the rights of the unborn child, and to demonstrate their outrage. As for the news media, the time has come when they should recognize and report the news based on the views of most of the people, not just a selected few. Americans are too smart to believe all of the biased news reported over many years.

I have faith in our country and its rights and privileges. There must be an end to licensed murders and we should never allow our tax dollars to be used in the committing of these crimes.

Sincerely,
Beverly Albe

Molpus: Lobbyists' spending up 73% in 1992

Lobbyists spent a record amount—$4,240,136—to influence state government during 1992, said Secretary of State Dick Molpus.

Last year, reported expenses were $2.4 million. Total spending for 1992 increased 73 percent over 1991, and entertainment expenses almost doubled.

Entertainment expenses (food, beverages, receptions, recreation, lodging, etc.) were reported at $386,629. Of that amount $10,771 was itemized according to which public official it went. Lobbyists reported the other $375,858 was spent in amounts less than $25 per occasion, which exempts those lobbyists from reporting on whom or where entertainment dollars were spent.

Molpus vowed to continue his fight for full disclosure of lobbying expenses. "I will be back asking the 1993 Legislature to require what every citizen is entitled to know—on whom this money is being spent."

An effort by Molpus and legislative allies to reform lobbyist laws was killed in the 1992 legislative session after passage in the House. A Senate committee refused to allow the bill to come to a floor vote.

"The average person has no idea where this money is going," Molpus said. "They feel as if some special interests have a larger voice than theirs and they have good reason for those concerns."

"The opponents of lobbyist reform said that lobbyists had little influence and that the public would only be confused by more reporting. They also fought us by saying that new forms would solve the disclosure problem. As we predicted, they were wrong on both counts—spending by special interests has increased dramatically, and the public only knows where less than 3 percent of the total spent on entertainment went. We must close the $25-per-occasion loophole that makes the current lobbyist law meaningless."

State law requires lobbyists and their employers to register and report expenses annually with the Secretary of State. This year, the 339 lobbyists and 223 employers listed $2.8 million in salaries and fees and $966,982 in overhead.

Thieves steal over 1,000 boats a month

Boat theft costs boaters and insurance companies millions of dollars each year. Fifteen percent of all marine insurance claims are for theft of a boat, its valuable equipment or reusable parts, according to the 425,000-member Boat Owners Association of the United States (BOAT/U.S.), the nation's largest organization of recreational boaters.

An average of 1,000 boats are reported stolen monthly, according to statistics compiled by the National Association of Marine Investigators. The chances of recovering a stolen boat are just one in ten. BOAT/U.S. recommends the following steps to combat boat theft and vandalism:

* Don't make your boat an easy target for thieves. Use theft-warning decals, locks and alarms. Anti-theft devices aren't fool-proof, but they can make boat burglary harder and buy time a crook doesn't have.

* Remove valuable items (especially topside electronics) if you plan to be away from the boat for a long time.

* If you leave your boat on a trailer, use a wheel lock. If it will be stationary for a long time, remove one or more of the wheels.

* Always keep your boat in a safe, preferably guarded location.

* Keep receipts for major equipment purchases and copies of ownership documents as well as photographs of your boat and its equipment onshore in a safe and secure place.

* Report any loss quickly to the local police and your insurance company.

Hancock Holding reports earnings

Hancock Holding Company (NASDAQ/NMS: HBHC) announced results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1992.

Net income for the quarter increased to $4.2 million compared with $2.5 million a year ago.

Earnings for the quarter amounted to $0.60 per share on 7.0 million average shares, outstanding, up 33 percent from $0.45 per share on 5.5 million average shares outstanding in the second quarter of 1991.

For the six months ended June 30, 1992, net income increased to $8.7 million compared with $5.3 million in the year-earlier period. Earnings per share for the first half rose 30 percent to $1.23 on 7.0 million average shares outstanding compared with $0.96 per share on 5.5 million average shares outstanding a year ago.

The increased number of shares outstanding is due to the company's public offering of 1.6 million shares completed in November 1991. All share and per share figures for the second quarter and first half of 1991 have been adjusted to reflect the 2-for-1 stock split distributed on Nov. 4, 1991, as a 100 percent stock dividend.

Commenting on the results, Leo W. Seal, Jr., president and chief executive officer, said, "The second quarter results represent a continuation of the growth recorded during the first period. The prevailing trend in interest rates remains a key factor behind the Company's improved profitability from a year ago. We have benefited from the ability to improve the net interest spread and have experienced sound growth through Hancock Holding's operations in both Mississippi and Louisiana."

Hancock Holding Company, headquartered in Gulfport, is the parent company of Hancock Bank in Gulfport and Hancock Bank of Louisiana in Baton Rouge. The company's common stock is traded over-the-counter under the NASDAQ symbol HBHC.

recommendations:

1. Parents should be given the choice of enrolling their children in any public school in any school district, consistent with federal guidelines, with state funds to follow the student.

2. Local school districts should be given the authority and responsibility for adopting their own curricula for meeting the needs of students, consistent with state accreditation requirements.

3. Local school districts should be given the authority to define their own missions, within state accreditation requirements.

4. Local schools should have the flexibility to employ teachers deemed accomplished in their fields, even though such teachers may not have completed professional education courses for certification. The goal should be to attract the best teachers available to the classroom.

While the report endorses choice within and between public schools, it does not recommend the use of public funds for private schools.

ON PATROL

From Echo Staff Reports

ATTACK AND ASSAULT

Sheriff's Department Investigator Matt Karl reported the arrest Tuesday of a Shoreline Park man for backing a truck over his sister-in-law, trying to run over a neighbor, and assaulting a police officer.

Karl said a dispute between David Ferrell, 35, of 4032 Cardinal St., and his wife, Deborah Ferrell began at about 4 a.m. at Bayou Jacques' Lounge in Bay St. Louis.

Witnesses reported the couple was quarrelling over who should take their three-year-old daughter home from the bar.

According to Karl, the husband reportedly took the child, saying he was going home. The mother then enlisted the help of her sister, Lora Necaise of 3023 Pacific St., in going after Ferrell and the child.

The two women found Ferrell and the child at Todd's Mini-Mart on Highway 603 where another altercation was said to have taken place between the couple.

Karl continued, Deputy Sheriff Travis Foreman reported Necaise told Ferrell that she would take the child home. Ferrell was then allegedly threatened to kill Necaise, striking her with the truck and then backing over her before driving away.

Ferrell is also charged with trying to run down Danny Crabtree, a neighbor who was standing on the side of Cardinal Street with two other people when Ferrell came home.

Karl said deputies did not know what provoked the attack on Crabtree.

Foreman reported Ferrell was intoxicated and belligerent when he and Waveland police officers Thomas Antoine and Jerry Beaugez arrived at Ferrell's house at 5:30 a.m.

Officers subdued Ferrell and took the child to the Sheriff's Department. Later the child was turned over to the mother by the Department of Social Services.

Necaise was listed in good condition at Hancock Medical Center. "In police photos, you can see tire marks on one leg below the knee," Karl added.

Contradictions

I heard a stupid ad on TV the other night.

It was for a product line that urges you to "do the natural thing" with your hair, then turns around and tells you to "sculpt your hair anyway you like it."

I was walking toward my kitchen when I heard this. The obvious contradiction in terms stopped me in my tracks and made me do a double-take.

My hair doesn't "naturally" sculpt, so either I "do the natural thing" or I sculpt it. I can't do both. I prefer to "do the natural thing," which for me is to wash my hair, towel dry it, comb it and go.

But doesn't it just grate on your nerves when people do that to you? They tell you one thing, then turn around two minutes later and say something different.

My grandmother (Mom's mom) — God love her — is like that when it comes to eating. She's a true Southern cook, and a great one; it's hard not to pig out when you go to her house.

For years, she fussed at me about my weight, but when it came time to sit down for a meal at her house, she all but fed me second helpings. I got so tired of it, I finally blew up at her — at a mall.

I'm not proud of that; it's not nice to blow up at your eighty-something grandmother in the middle of J.C. Penney. But it seemed that a loss of temper was my last resort. Politeness hadn't worked; maybe anger would.

It did, to an extent. She still talks about my weight, but she's more encouraging than she used to be.

She hasn't stopped offering me seconds, though. I've just gotten better at saying "no" when I really don't want any more, and at not feeling guilty about getting seconds when I do want more.

My dad used to stay on me about my weight, saying he was concerned about my health in years to come. I finally told him not to preach about my weight until he could quit smoking.

Needless to say, that didn't go over too well.

Sometimes, we can address a contradiction in terms. Other times, though, it may be best just to let it go.

Then there are the times you just can't do anything about it. Like TV commercials.

I guess you could write to the companies, but that seems like a waste of a postage stamp to me. The companies probably wouldn't listen.

Well, if you'll excuse me, I have to wash my hair. I'm going to try to both "do the natural thing" and sculpt my hair, but I don't think it'll work.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Ever since a tall-masted sailing schooner delivered the first tropical fruit to the state Port of Gulfport some 71 years ago, bananas have been an important cargo to the port, as well as a delight to palates.

Far different, of course, from that schooner, the largest banana boat ever to call on the port, the Edyth L. landed earlier this month with its cargo. Gulfport is now the second largest banana port in the nation, second only to Wilmington, Del.; and Port Director Bill Edwards expects next year to be even better.

From our port, the bananas wend their way to points west, north and east, to satisfy the nation's craving for this delicious fruit. Up until the latter years of the 19th century, so we are told, bananas were an expensive luxury. Most Americans were introduced to the banana and its goodness at the Philadelphia 1876 Centennial Exposition, where bananas, individually wrapped in tinfoil, were sold for a dime apiece.

Shortly after the turn of the century, bananas changed from an expensive delicacy to an affordable staple when banana companies started shipping the fruit from Latin America (where they had long been a staple food) on refrigerated produce boats—and thus grew the industry and our enjoyment of this versatile fruit.

Scientists say that the banana, oldest of fruits, dates back to the Pliocene era, some one million years ago; and I have heard or read somewhere or other that some claim the Manna, and not the apple, was the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden! The first record of a banana recipe comes from the writings of an Arab historian, Masudi, so authorities tell us, who wrote in the 10th century of an Egyptian treat of almonds, honey and bananas!

I like bananas in just about every way—eaten out of hand, atop my breakfast cereal, fried, baked or broiled; in fritters and pies and puddings, as well as ice cream and Bananas Foster and so on—how about you? Let's not forget banana nut bread, either, or banana splits!

Bananas aren't only for dessert, either. Baked or broiled bananas, for instance, go well with meats or chicken; and banana fritters are the ideal accompaniment for fried chicken, in my opinion. (Of course, Southern cooks are partial to all kinds of fritters, such as corn or okra or various fruits, as well.) Here's:

BANANA FRITTERS

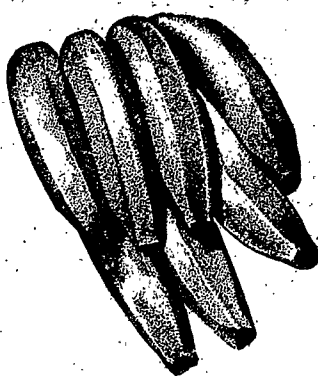

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking powder
1 1/2 Tbsp. sugar
1 egg, beaten
1/3 cup milk
4 firm bananas, peeled, of course; each cut into 3 or 4 diagonal pieces

Oil for frying
Confectioner's sugar
Sift one cup of the flour, the baking powder, salt and sugar together. Combine the eggs and milk and add to the dry ingredients, mixing until the batter is smooth and stiff. (A stiff batter makes a fritter which stays crisp awhile after it is fried.)

Roll the banana pieces in the remaining quarter-cup of flour, then dip into the fritter batter, fully coating each piece. Fry in the hot oil (375 degrees) turning until the fritters brown on all sides. Drain on paper towels, and sprinkle with the powdered sugar while still quite hot.

For another version of:

4 medium firm bananas
Juice of 1/2 lemon
2 Tbsp. confectioner's sugar

"The Wound Care/Hyperbaric Medicine Unit at Gulf Coast Medical Center is more than just a long name for a hospital department. It means results."

Dr. Paul G. Matherne, Medical Director, The Wound Care/Hyperbaric Medicine Unit, Gulf Coast Medical Center

Gulf Coast Medical Center continues its commitment of comprehensive medical care with our expansion of Wound Care/Hyperbaric Medicine.

In a hyperbaric chamber, we're able to create an atmosphere of pure oxygen and increased atmospheric pressure in order to hasten the body's natural healing process.

Hyperbaric treatments are often recommended for

- Chronic wounds that won't heal
- External limb ulcers
- Recurring infections
- Brown recluse spider bites
- Bone infections
- Carbon monoxide poisoning (smoke inhalation)

GCMC was the first hospital to introduce this specialized healthcare on the Coast, and we're expanding our capabilities with a comprehensive wound management center, providing treatment and recovery services in coordination with your physician's orders. We think that's important. And so does Dr. Matherne.

For additional information call our Wound Care/Hyperbaric Medicine Unit at 388-0288.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Fishin': a family affair

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Looks like the single biggest fishin' areas or should I say catching areas, this past week, have been the fishin' piers, and the Bay St. Louis bridge, at night.

White trout seem to be the most common fish being caught at night off these structures.

The favorite food of white trout seems to be dead shrimp fished on the bottom using a 4/0 hook, or smaller, with no bigger than a 3/8 oz. lead sinker.

The weight of the sinker seems to be important. The reason for this size sinker is that it gives you enough weight to cast your bait a good distance out. Yet, you can feel the fish when they nibble on your bait.

If you use too heavy a sinker it is like tying a brick to the end of your line. It takes a fish the size of a giant blue fin tuna shark to even move your line off the bottom.

Now, how are you gonna feel an ordinary fish bite if your bait is cemented to the bottom of the water? The answer is obvious—no way.

For those folks who are fishing the Bay St. Louis car bridge at night, I have several reliable reports that those big metal fish are dangerous. Plus, no one yet has been able to filet one of the metal fish that use the bridge. So, the word is: you might want to be extra careful if you gotta fish the Bay St. Louis car bridge at night, or any other time.

The hot bait for the wade fishermen this past week has been the chartreuse beetle in tandem about 24 inches under a weighted popping cork.

Half Moon and Grassy Island have been producing fish on a steady basis over the past week using artificial and live bait.

Most of the reports form this past week have been from people along the seawall. On just one day I counted 87 people fishing and crabbing off the seawall from Bayou Caddy to just east of Buccaneer State Park.

Since so many people were enjoying the seawall I felt it might be a good idea to interview some of these folks to see if they could pass along what their reasons were for fishin' off the seawall. The most common reply from parents was that the seawall is a great way to entertain kids. The parents could enjoy the sun and the sea breezes while the kids had fun fishin' and crabbing.

The Alford and the Sackett family had six kids, three girls and three boys, between them. Les, age 12, and Steven, 10, Sackett were proud that they caught eight white trout a couple of nights ago at the Lader pier. They cleaned the fish, cooked them, ate them, and most importantly for their parents, they cleaned up their mess. Way to go, men.

Megan Pitre, 7, said she has never caught a fish but she is learning from Ashley Alford, 9, how to throw crab nets upside down!!!!

Emily Alford, 12, felt that the key to fishing was to wear ultra bright colors, including psychedelic sun glasses.

A little further down the seawall I talked to Larrece Lader and Debra Holston. Both claimed their ages to be 21 (!).

They stated that they had not been crabbing for at least 10 years but that they never forget how. Since they had some time off, they felt crabbing was a relaxing way to spend a day.

Madeline Smith (age 21 plus) said she had several days off work and she just enjoys the atmosphere. She didn't care if she caught anything, as she didn't want to have to go home and clean her catch.

Lou and Jim Pilkins said they were gonna go get a hamburger anyway whether they caught fish or not.

Chris Walker and his mama, Mary, were fishing with Grandma Ruby Conrad, but it seemed that Chris was mainly catching grandma's line.

This week's wonderful wise words: The seawall is ready made for family fun and it's free.

Take a kid fishin', big or little, turtle.

Fighter

Randy Johnson caught this 29½-pound red fish while wade fishing at Monroe's fishing pier recently. Johnson used live shrimp as bait with an Ambassador 5000 on 10-pound test line. He fought the fish more than 40 minutes before bringing it to shore.

Physicals required for BHS football participants

All students wishing to participate on the Tiger football team must have a complete physical examination before practice start.

Physicals will be offered at a cost of $10 to BHS students by Dr. J.B. Levens, 641 Dunbar Avenue, August 3-7, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Forms will be available at Dr. Levens' office.

Students wishing to use the services of another doctor should pick up a physical examination form at the Bay High School field house.

Night fishing often best at specific hours

Do bass sleep during the night?

If you've spent much time fishing for largemouths after dark, you may think so, because it can often be a long, long time between strikes.

"My friends and I have talked about this often," explains longtime night fisherman Charlie Reed, "and it seems like the best night fishing times are when the sun first goes down, and then again between midnight and dawn."

"It really does seem like the bass go to sleep."

Reed, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and winner of the 1986 Bass Masters Classic, enjoys night fishing throughout the summer, but the hours during which bass bite most consistently continually puzzle him.

"I have no idea why the fish seem to be more active at those particular times," he says, "but over the years, my most consistent night action has been as the sun first sets, and then again between midnight and dawn."

"There is a definite lull after that first flurry of action that lasts throughout the evening hours, and I can't begin to explain it."

Despite their fickle feeding times, the Johnson pro says after dark fishing in the summer offers several major advantages over daytime fishing. It's cooler and much more pleasant to be on the water, he explains, and the lakes are far less crowded.

"Night fishing is similar to day fishing, too," he adds, "because you can use the same lures and techniques and fish in the same places. The bass move up on shallow flats and points to feed, and they're less spooky because of the darkness."

Reed's favorite nighttime bass lures include big spinnerbaits, plastic worms, and top-water plugs.

"Because bass do move shallow at night to feed, spinnerbaits can be extremely effective," Reed points out. "You fish them the same as in the daylight, bumping cover like rocks or stumps, and changing retrieve speeds so the lure rises and falls erratically. If you're looking for a big bass at night, a spinnerbait is certainly one lure to consider."

Reed also uses plastic worms, but not the common six and seven inch models commonly used during daylight hours. He frequently uses plastic worms a full 12 inches long.

"It's a big bass lure," the Johnson pro laughs, "although small bass also hit it. You fish it just as you would a smaller worm, but at night bass key on vibrations more than on sight, and a big worm like that definitely makes a lot of vibration."

"It's even big enough to wake up a bass in case he's sleeping."

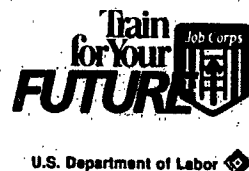

She's a heartbreaker.

She's taken the plunge out of high school and into a pool of statistics. You're worried sick about her future.

She needs a job, but what can she do without training?

Job Corps can help her get an education, learn job skills, and earn money while she learns. Some centers offer child-care programs too. And the best part? It's all tuition-free!

If your heartbreaker is 16 to 21 and looking for direction, call Job Corps; 1-800-338-7899 or visit your state Employment Service office.

Commission revokes live-bait license

The Commission on Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks voted to revoke the boat license of a Biloxi bait camp for two weeks after the camp's boat operator was convicted last month for live-bait violations.

The commission ordered that Curtis P. Parker, owner of Back Bay Fishing Camp, post a $1,000 surety bond before the boat can again be used by the camp for catching live bait.

The boat operator, Danny Surian, 45, of d'Iberville, was arrested on June 23 by Bureau of Marine Resources Conservation Officer Vince LaPoma and charged with having too many dead shrimp aboard the vessel.

Surian was convicted in Justice Court the same day and was fined $100 and ordered to pay $54 in court costs.

Regulations say that a live-bait boat may have no more than 30 pounds of dead shrimp aboard.

When stopped by LaPoma, Surian had 280 pounds of dead shrimp aboard his boat.

The revocation only applies to the operation of the boat, not to the operation of the camp.

Local Karate Club competes in championships

Gulf Coast Shotokan Karate Club of Waveland competed in Amateur Athletic Union National Karate Championships July 3, 4 and 5. Competitors from 50 states were represented.

All competitors qualified to compete by placing in regional competition. In the AAU there are 13 regions. Over 2,000 competitors were present.

All styles of martial arts were invited to compete, including such styles as Kemp, Shotokan, Teakwando, Issahauryu, American Open Karate, Kyokushinkai and Goshin Jutshu.

Divisions of competitors were divided by male, female, age and years of training. Competitors could participate in areas of Kobudo (weapons). Kata (prearranged movement sequences), Kumite (fighting) and Team Kobudo, team kata and team kumite.

Seventeen students from Gulf Coast Shotokan Karate Club of Waveland competed in a variety of categories from beginner to advanced, ages seven through senior (age 35-44), competing in kata and kumite.

Sherri Dubuissou, Wade Ladner and Angie Dubuissou who have less than a year of training were able to qualify and compete on the national level.

Instructor Rannie Ladner has had students qualify for national competition and place in the top three for the past five years. The students have put in many long hours of training and have developed skills of concentration and self control as well as physical skills," said Ladner.

Renee Weaver, 37, of Bay St. Louis placed first in fighting in the women's division. She won five fights in double elimination competition. Weaver also placed first in fighting in reg-year of training.

Other students from Gulf Coast Karate Club who placed has less than a year of training.

Other students who placed in the top eight in kata in AAU national competition were Kathryn Norton, fourth, Bob Brundage, fifth, Ronald Storey, fifth, Angie Dubuissou, fifth, Brandon Weaver, seventh and Beckey Storey, eighth.

Competitors ages 8-18 placing in the top eight in a division can compete in junior olympics either in individual or team play.

This national tournament qualifies those placing in the top eight to advance to the junior olympics. Fifteen students have qualified for the junior olympics over the past five years, Ladner said.

Of five students who were eligible, two students from Gulf Coast Shotokan Karate Club, Ronald Storey and Brandon Weaver, qualified for the junior olympics in Minnesota this year.

Weaver qualified for the junior olympics last year. This is the third consecutive year Storey has qualified for the junior olympics. Last year he represented the state of Mississippi by carrying the state flag in the opening ceremony.

Ladner also competed this year. In addition, he received additional training from the AAU to be a licensed official and coach. This certified him to judge on a national and olympic level.

Bob Brundage, 28, of Bay St. Louis placed second in fighting. He fought four rounds. Brundage has been in karate training for several years and is testing for black belt this year.

Kathryn Norton, 38, of Waveland won four of five fights, competing in the women's division, taking second place. She has less than two years of training.

Wade Ladner, 11, of Pass Christian placed second in fighting in a large field of competitors. He won five of six fights having had less than a in the top eight of the field in AAU national competition in fighting were Geoffrey Claussen, fourth; Sherri Dubuissou, fifth place, and Kassie Hall, also fifth.

Kata competition gives the competitor a chance to show precise controlled karate movements in a pre-arranged sequence. To some, kata is more difficult than fighting because each movement shows controlled power and precision.

In kata competition, Kassie Hall placed third in junior division (9-10-year-olds) with 25 competitors in the field. Hall

Mississippi Outdoors welcomes return of southern bald eagles

Mississippi Outdoors visits a hacking tower where the Southern Bald Eagle soars. An eagle restoration program is placing eaglets that originally came from Florida at a site on Okatbee Lake in east central Mississippi. Host Melvin Tingle talks to John Burris, state project coordinator, and Jack Huntly, U.S. Corps of Engineers, to find out how the state is assisting in this regional restoration effort.

Co-host Mara Hartman joins Jim Trunzler of the Sierra Club for a look at different types of canoes and kayaks and a review of necessary accessories, including paddles, life jackets and helmets.

Tingle becomes a better boater with the help of conservation officer Kennie Prince.

Prince explains the importance of a legal boat registration and how Melvin what equipment is necessary to have on board.

On Outdoor Discovery, Mara visits with Mike Stegall of the Museum of Natural Science in Jackson. Together they explore an aquarium representative of Mississippi's oxbow lakes and study the fishes and underwater structures found there.

Area teachers study energy, environment

Several Gulf Coast teachers were among 25 teachers who participated in the Mississippi Energy and Environmental Education Workshop June 22-25 at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Sponsored by Mississippi Power Company, the workshop focused on helping teachers to communicate the importance of energy and the environment to their students. Teachers and school systems with high potential for adding energy and environmental education to their existing programs were chosen to participate.

Local participants included Jim Thriffley of Bay St. Louis—St. Stanislaus High School; Olive T. McKenna of Waveland—Waveland Elementary School; and Katherine Hamiter of Bay St. Louis—Bayou View Elementary School.

'Midsummer Night's Dream'

Dinner dance to benefit Cancer Society

Diamondhead Country Club is the setting for the Hancock County Chapter American Cancer Society's annual dinner dance Saturday, Aug. 1, 7-10 p.m.

This year's theme for the chapter's major fund raising effort is "A Midsummer Night's Dream," according to co-chairmen Lee Fredian and Evelyn Kibler. Those choosing to forego formal/black tie dress may wear costumes appropriate for the Shakespearean theme.

Complimentary wine will be served with dinner.

Several door prizes are planned, including a $500 gift certificate to Shamis of Mississippi City. Prizes are also offered for best costumes: male, female and couple.

Johnny Johnston and "Jamms" will provide entertainment.

In conjunction with the event, ACS board members are selling raffle tickets for three prizes: a round trip ticket for two good in 48 states, compliments of American Airlines; home security system (installed), compliments of Dictograph Security Systems; and Diamondhead Supermarket $150 gift certificate.

Raffle tickets are $1 each, or six for $5. The winner does not need to be present for the drawing, which will be at 8 the night of the dance.

Seating is restricted to 180 persons, said Fredian, who requested reservations be secured in advance. Cost is $40 per person, tax-deductible to the extent permitted by law.

For information, call Fredian (255-1814) or Kibler (255-7935).

Humanities Council sponsors presentation of 'Chautauqua'

Jefferson Davis and Abraham Lincoln are coming to Poyayune. With a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Mississippi Humanities Council is bringing a Chautauqua to the Crosby Arboretum on Wednesday, August 11.

In the late 1800s and early 1900s, Chautauqua traveled across America, offering authors, professors, and political leaders as speakers in tent meetings which have been described as a people's university.

This program is offered in the same spirit as the original, as entertaining education.

Allen Dennis will portray Abraham Lincoln and debate Kit Carter as Jefferson Davis at 6:30 on August 11.

Dennis is a professor of history at Delta State University who has long impersonated historical characters for his students. Carter is professor of history at Mississippi University for Women where he was teacher of the year for 1992.

Each character will introduce himself in a short biographical monologue and then debate. After the debate, the audience will be invited to question Davis and Lincoln "in character," as the historical figures would have responded.

Finally, the moderator will introduce the professors to answer questions as scholars.

At 6:30 on August 12, a second performance will feature two female journalists, Ida B. Wells and Eliza Jane Poitevant.

Wells was born a slave in Holly Springs in 1862. When her parents died in a yellow fever epidemic in 1876, she took a job as a country school teacher to support her younger brothers and sisters.

After attending Rust College while teaching, she moved her family to Memphis in 1884 to take a higher paying position in the public schools. The same year she successfully sued the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad for forcing her into a segregated railroad after she had paid for a first class ticket.

Continuing to teach, Wells moved into journalism as editor of the Memphis Free Speech. Dismissed from her teaching position for criticizing the unequal provisions made for black schools in Memphis, she was subsequently run out of town for editorials about the lynching of one of her friends.

She eventually settled in Chicago and continued her anti-lynching and black rights activities. Ida B. Wells was honored in 1989 with a commemorative postage stamp for a life of work for racial and female equality.

Wells will be played by Marcia Berry-Diggs, who is finishing a MFA degree at the University of Mississippi. Berry-Diggs is a "non-traditional student," having reared five children before becoming an actress and starting college.

Elizabeth Sarcone, a graduate of MUW and professor of English at Delta State University, will portray Eliza Potevant Holbrook Nicholls.

"Pearl Rivers" as she signed her newspaper columns, was educated as a Southern "lady," to marry some "gentleman" and grace his home. Instead she wrote poetry and took a job on the New Orleans Picayune as literary editor. She shortly thereafter married the much older editor, Colonel Alva Holbrook.

Upon his death, she was left to run the paper in an age when a female reporter was a novelty and a female editor unthinkable. She revived the paper, led many reform movements, and along the way helped to shape modern journalism, with sections for children and women, a society page, and an advice column by her fellow Mississippian Dorothy Dix.

Later marrying her business manager, George Nicholson, and rearing a family, she never relinquished control of the paper.

Join these characters at the Crosby Arboretum on August 11, and prepare for an evening of entertaining education.

For further information, contact Dr. Cora Norman, executive director, MHC, at 982-6752.

Financing a college education

By Janet K. Lukens
Area consumer money management specialist

Paying for a college education has become one of the greatest financial challenges for many families. In fact, the cost of a 4-year education at many private colleges is approaching the median price of a single-family house in the United States.

Mississippi State University will have a tuition increase from $1,111.50 to $1,236.50 for in-state students this fall. Our other public universities will have a similar increase as well. On a long-term basis tuition costs are expected to continue rising at an average rate of 7 percent per year for public colleges and 9 percent per year for private colleges.

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 created an even greater challenge for families saving for college education. It eliminated or reduced many of the legitimate tax breaks that parents were using to save for a college education.

The 1986 Higher Education Amendments reduced assistance available in grants and placed restrictions on financial aid, requiring students to pay a larger portion of the total college bill.

Financial planning for college costs is certainly more critical than it has ever been. The first step in this process is estimating costs. Direct costs including tuition, fees, room and board, are available from each particular institution and comparisons among various institutions can be made by checking The College Cost Book published by the College Board at (212) 713-8142 or a booklet issued by the Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association at (203) 677-0033. Both of these publications can be found in many local libraries.

Once a target dollar amount is set, various savings methods should be considered with thought given to ownership of the fund and taxes.

Ownership of the educational fund can be structured by using a custodial account, outright gifting, establishing a minor's trust, or saving under your own name.

The Uniform Gifts to Minors Act (UGMA) and the Uniform Transfer to Minors Act (UTMA) provide that a parent or adult may transfer securities, money, life insurance, or annuities to a minor.

These accounts allow income to be shifted from the parent's higher tax rate to the child's lower tax bracket. The actual tax advantages are determined by the child's age. The child is treated as a separate taxpayer if he or she is over the age of 14.

All unearned income from the custodial account will be taxed at the child's lower tax level. If the child is under the age of 14, the new "kiddie tax" rules apply. Any unearned income over $1,100 will be taxed at the parent's higher tax rate.

Outright giving may have drawbacks due to lack of control over the money and setting up an investment account agreement.

An irrevocable trust or Section 2503(c) trust, is an alternative to consider when the "kiddie tax" comes into play. The principal and interest of the trust must be payable to the child when he or she reaches age 21. Income accumulated in the trust for the child is taxed to the trust.

Outright gifting, a section 2503(c) trust and custodial accounts under UTMA or UGMA all qualify for the annual gift-tax exclusion. When gifts do not exceed $10,000 (or $20,000 when spouses join in the gift), there are no gift tax consequences.

Hancock beef producers support retail nutrition information

Consumers want to know what's in the food they buy. Efforts by Hancock County beef producers and others in the meat industry continue to provide consumers throughout the country with retail nutrition labeling information on fresh meat.

will take effect in May 1994. According to Tom Healey of the Mississippi Cattle Industry Board, beef producers in Mississippi haven't been idly watching the proceedings. In fact, Healey said, beef producers over the years have been at the forefront of efforts to assure which established consistent terminology for the wide variety of meat cuts on the market. With URMIS, consumers were assured that the products they purchased in Los Angeles were the same products that they purchased in New York and all points in between.

This advancement was followed in the late 1970s by the USDA's Handbook 8 series, which included new data on beef and other meat products. Hancock County beef producers, through their checkoff investments in market development activities, demonstrated their support with funding for construction of the data base and distribution of the information.

In 1985, the meat industry again led in providing consumers with retail fresh meat information by introducing a program called Nutri-Facts. This program featured data and materials for retailers to use in their point-of-purchase and other marketing efforts. The effort, co-sponsored by the Meat Board, the American Meat Institute and the Food Marketing Institute, was recognized by the National Academy of Sciences as a model program for commodity nutrition labeling, and over the last seven years has been adopted by other commodity groups in their own consumer education programs.

Poultry, for example, was added to the Nutri-Facts program in 1987, and seafood came on board in 1988. Updated in 1992, the Nutri-Facts program now provides information on 45 meat and poultry products, 20 seafood items and 40 fresh fruits and vegetables.

Because two agencies are involved in labeling regulations—the USDA for meat, poultry and eggs and FDA for all other food products—the specific rules for the 1994 introduction of mandatory labeling are yet to be determined, Healey said. Final regulations will be available in November 1992.

As a result of their checkoff marketing efforts, beef producers in Mississippi and across the country are ahead of schedule, according to Eric Hentges, PhD, Meat Board director of nutrition research.

"Due to their ability to recognize consumer needs, beef producers and others in the meat industry have paved the way by initiating a point-of-purchasing labeling program on their own," Hentges said.

"The industry has always been in favor of nutrition labeling, because consumers who have the facts know that beef and other meats are important elements of a healthful, balanced diet."

Renewed interest in labeling was brought to light this spring, when the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced a one-year postponement of proposed labeling requirements developed in November 1991 that would have gone into effect in May 1993. This means that new labeling regulations for meat and poultry products other than fresh, raw products that consumers have nutrition information available when they buy beef products.

Back in the early 1970s, for instance, when the USDA and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) were first developing labeling regulations, the National Live Stock and Meat Board helped draft a program called Uniform Retail Meat Identity Standards (URMIS),

Select fresh produce at farmers' markets

By Linda S. Moore
MSU Information Services
Farmers' markets provide the ideal locations for finding the freshest, in-season produce for summer fruits and vegetables. A careful inspection will insure the highest quality produce for canning, freezing or immediate consumption.

Dr. David Nagel, extension horticulturist at Mississippi State University, said the appearance of the produce is the major factor for selecting quality fruits and vegetables.

"Fresh produce is free of dehydration wrinkles and is the color it is supposed to be," Nagel said. "Avoid produce with signs of disease or discolored spots."

Fruits and vegetables such as tomatoes, bell peppers and squash should be heavy for their sizes, Nagel said heavily.

ness is a sign the produce came from a healthy plant. Produce that is free of dirt indicates it was grown by a conscientious gardener.

Size and quality do not necessarily correlate. In most cases size is a matter of the buyer's preference and is not a major factor when buying by the pound.

Nelda Starks, extension nutrition education specialist, said uniformity in maturity and size is desirable for canning vegetables such as beans and cucumbers.

"If you are going to can or freeze, the produce should be firm and not underripe or overripe," Starks said. "Blemishes would take away from the amount for canning and freezing because those spots would have to be cut off."

Nagel said the benefit of farmers' markets is in freshness since the prices are usually comparable to groceries.

"Grocery produce may be harvested as recently as two to four days or as long as seven to 10 days," Nagel said. "A farmers' market will usually have produce picked the evening before it reaches the market."

If lower prices are a priority (as opposed to quality), Nagel recommended shopping at the end of the day when bargains may be found. In some cases, buyers can negotiate with the farmer to buy in bulk for canning or freezing produce.

Ask questions of the manager or owner of the farmers' market to determine the freshness of the produce available. Extended times in the heat may cause produce to spoil or damage the desirable flavors.

To insure the freshest produce, buy early in the morning and process as soon as possible.

Nagel said snap beans should snap; lima beans should not be limp and consumers should be able to feel the beans in the pods. Purple hull peas should be purple, not have black or lilac-colored hulls.

Yellow squash with warty skin is too old to taste good.

To evaluate sweet corn, pull back the husk and puncture one of the kernels. If a milky juice shoots out, it's ready for processing or consumption.

Watermelons should have a cream or yellow bottom and have a dull thud sound when they are thumped. Nagel said people can't tell if watermelons are overripe until cutting the melon.

Cantaloupes should not have partial stems or signs of tearing on the stem end which are indications the fruit was picked green. If harvested at the right time, the scar on the stem end will have even edges.

Cochran addresses Educational Network

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran said that educational television in Mississippi has "come a long way since the early days" during an address to the Mississippi Educational Network's third annual board of directors Tri-Board Luncheon recently.

Cochran addressed the boards of directors of the Mississippi Authority for Educational Television (MAET), Friends of Mississippi Educational Network and the Foundation for Public Broadcasting in Mississippi.

W. H. Cochran of Jackson, the senator's father, also attended the luncheon and received a special award of appreciation for his service as chairman of MAET's first board of directors. Cochran served as board chairman from Dec. 12, 1969, until Feb. 1, 1972, during which time Mississippi Educational Television was just beginning to gain support in the state.

Cochran has recently been instrumental in the statewide educational network's efforts to have legislation adopted regarding the funding of distance learning.

Cochran, who praised Mississippi ETV for taking the leadership role in providing educational telecommunications services to the state, gave his support for public broadcasting last month during the Corporation for Public Broadcasting Reauthorization debates in the Senate.

SECOND PUBLIC HEARING

Hancock County, Mississippi is considering applying to the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development (MDECD) for a 1992 Home Investment Partnership Program (HOME) Grant. The grant will be used for improvements to low and moderate income homeowner occupied housing units. Citizen participation requirements mandate an initial public hearing in which local input, both verbal and written, is gathered.

Also a second public hearing is required in which the citizenry is informed of the following:

1. Type of proposed HOME activities;
2. Location of proposed HOME project area(s); and
3. Reasons for selecting activities and project area(s).

The purpose of this notice is to inform the citizenry of the scheduling of the second public hearing. The hearing will be held at County Courthouse on Thursday, August 6, 1992 at 8:00 p.m. The above location has been selected because it is accessible to the handicapped.

Cruiser ready for christening

The U.S. Navy's newest Aegis guided missile cruiser, Vella Gulf (CG 72), will be christened at Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton in Pascagoula on Saturday, July 25. Breaking the traditional champagne bottle across the new ship's bow will be ship's sponsor Mrs. Mary Ann McCauley, wife of Vice Admiral William F. McCauley, USN, Ret., former Commander, Naval Surface Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet. CG 72 is the 18th of 19 Aegis cruisers being built for the Navy by Ingalls, and is the second U.S. Navy warship named to commemorate a World War II Pacific Theater naval engagement fought on the night of Aug. 6-7, 1943, during the Solomons Campaign. After christening, CG 72 will undergo final outfitting and sea trials before delivery to the Navy in 1993.

What every veteran should know

State agency assists in purchasing homes

Assisting Mississippi veterans in securing affordable housing is the purpose of a unique agency of state government, the Mississippi Veterans Home Purchase Board.

Through this agency, eligible Mississippi veterans may receive assistance in purchasing a home. The agency tries to make loans at least two points under the VA rate, up to a maximum of $55,000. The board's current rate is 6 1/2 percent, which is 2 1/2 percent below the VA rate. In addition, the agency does not charge any origination fee or discount points as most mortgage companies do.

The Mississippi Veterans Home Purchase Board was organized by the Mississippi Legislature in 1946. It was formed for the purpose of providing benefits to the state's veterans. It operates from a revolving fund. As payments come in from veterans on principal and interest, these funds are in turn loaned out to other veterans.

Mississippi's program of loaning money directly to veterans is unique among the states. Some states offered one-time bonuses to their veterans, but those benefits were only temporary. The Legislature did a real favor for this state's veterans.

The program has proven itself for over 45 years and is still benefitting the veterans it was designed to help. It assists veterans of Mississippi in purchasing or building personal, single-family, permanent houses. The limited revolving funds it provides normally require a waiting period. Some other provisions are:

a. It does not refinance the veteran's equity or permanent loans. Instead, the state purchases the house by taking title to the property at closing and immediately conveys it back to the veteran, secured by a first deed of trust.

b. The terms of financing include a maximum limit of $55,000 in all circumstances. The current interest rate is 6 1/2 percent subject to changes prior to final written approval and commitment. The maximum term is 25 years with 300 monthly installments.

c. Hazard and fire insurance is required and must be paid in advance prior to closing the loan. It must be paid to the board in installments for annual renewals thereafter.

d. Taxes are escrowed monthly and paid annually by the board.

e. To be eligible, a veteran must obtain a certificate of eligibility for Home Loan Guaranty from the VA, regardless of how much entitlement remains. The veteran must also have been discharged from extended active duty under honorable conditions, with reserve and National Guard active duty not included. Original discharge papers (Form DD 214) must be presented. A veteran must also have been a Mississippi resident prior to entering service or for two consecutive years after discharge and immediately preceding application.

f. Property must be a single home to be eligible. Farms, land only, mobile homes and condominiums do not qualify. Townhouses with fee simple to the lot, and modular homes with permanent foundations meeting VA and Veterans Home Purchase Board standards and specifications, may qualify. Purchase may apply to an existing or newly constructed house.

g. Applications are processed in the order received. When a veteran contacts the agency, he or she is sent a pre-application form to be placed on the waiting list.

h. Processing of an application consists of a thorough analysis of a veteran's eligibility, credit, employment stability, adequate income for repayment, financial worth, and approval of the house (property) through appraisal and inspection.

Local veterans who are interested can come by the County Veterans Service Office on Main Street across from the courthouse in Bay St. Louis and fill out a pre-application form. Remember, you will need your DD 214 to accompany your application.
